REFORM JEWS RALLY OPENS TODAY IN MONTREAL

The first Biennial Convention of the Canadian Council of Reform Congregations, a region of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, will convene this weekend, November 23rd—25th, at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Lay and rabbinic leaders from Reform temples in Canada will gather to discuss and map blueprints to launch new programs for religious education, worship, community action, membership drives, and winning unaffiliated Jewish families to the existing congregations.

"This assembly marks the first joint meeting of this Canadian Council," observed Max E. Enkin, Council President from Port Credit, Ontario. "It will launch a series of gatherings in this country to speed the growth of the Reform Movement throughout Canada.

"In addition to discussing the day-to-day temple problems, we will also review ways in which our branch of Judaism can contribute to the strengthening of our nation," Mr. Enkin said.

EISENDRATH TO SPEAK

Highlight of the three-day event will be the Saturday night banquet address on November 24th. Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, President of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, will keynote the convention theme, "The Time Is Now." Dr. Eisendrath served as the spiritual leader of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto for fourteen years and was a leading figure in this country. He was one of the founders of Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews. Since his assumption of the presidency of the UAHC in 1943, Rabbi Eisendrath has received international recognition. Among the many awards honoring his work, he was named Religious Heritage of America Clergyman of the Year 1959, he received the First Spiritual Freedom Citation from the Chapel of the Four Chaplains in Philadelphia, and he was a recipient of the 1961 Gandhi Peace Award.

ISRAELI FOREIGN MINISTER TO ARRIVE IN OTTAWA ON WEDNESDAY

United Nations, N. Y. (CJN) — The Honourable Howard Green, Canada's Foreign Minister stated here that he extended an invitation to Golda Meir, Israel's Foreign Minister to visit Canada from November 28th to 30th, it was announced here Tuesday. Mrs. Meir will travel from New York on a special Canadian plane to Ottawa where she will meet also Mr. John G. Diefenbaker, the Prime Minister. She will also visit Toronto and Montreal.

While her visit will come on the eve of the debate on the refugee problem, there is little or no connection between these two events, according to well informed sources here. Canada is deeply involved in maintaining peace in the Middle East—she is the third largest contributor to UNRWA and maintains 1,000 men in the United Nations Emergency Force. While there is no substance to rumours here that she will propose a new refugee plan, Canada's influence in the U.N. is great and her last years support for peace negotiations in the Middle East greatly helped Israel's cause.

Canada's trade with Israel has been growing steadily. It increased from $2,000,000 in 1960 to $4,500,000 in 1962.

Commentary • By M. J. Nurenberger

a soviet enigma

"Every time, when any government wants to divert the wrath of the masses, it turns them against the Jew... Every campaign against whatever nation is an intolerable crime and shame."

Lenin in The Declaration Against anti-Semitism, Izvestia, July 27, 1918

In the famous words of Winston Churchill, the Soviet Union still is an enigma wrapped in a riddle. Especially has its policy towards Jews remained a puzzle not only to the Jewish people throughout the world but to all who believe in co-existence. And co-existence does not imply that the only party which has the right to change the status quo (whether by arming Cuba or Egypt, or by curtailing the cultural rights of its Jewish population) is the Soviet Union.

During the years following the death of Stalin, who, according to the Moscow official version, was a tyrant, all of us in the West hoped that the thaw would effect also the Jewish people. When I speak of the peculiar attitude towards Jews by the government of the U.S.S.R., I definitely do not base any statement upon my personal anti-Communist convictions. I do not believe that Communism is a better system than is ours. But I do believe that the basis of co-existence is my respect for the right of all Soviet citizens to behold their system as the ideal one. Nor do I doubt for a moment that the leading Jews in the U.S.S.R., including the great physicists like Landau and Kapitsa, are deeply convinced of the righteousness of their country, as is any Soviet Jewish man in the street or the Chief Rabbi of Moscow.

However no amount of propaganda will convince me that the Jews in Russia accept as a part of their destiny a situation whereby no Jewish prayer books are being published, no Jewish schools tolerated, no Yeshiva allowed to function properly, and where the policy of the Soviet government vis-a-vis the Jews — as a recognized, national, ethnic and cultural group by Soviet law — is, in the words of Lenin, a campaign against a nation and an intolerable crime and shame.

Likewise it is wrong to assume that the Jews of Russia have no feelings for the Jewish State. It is only natural for a person of a certain ethnic descent to take pride in the achievements of his fellow-coreligionists or brothers in cultural affinity. Hebrew is older than Russian. More than half of humanity believes it to be the holy tongue in which God spoke to us on Mount Sinai. Again, the rulers of the Soviet Union have every right to disbelieve; but no one on this side of the world will accept the fallacy that the teaching of Hebrew or circumcision according to Jewish law are a threat to the security of the Soviet Union.

Whenever one of us protests against these and other manifestations of Jewish inequality in Russia — that is, in the post-Stalin era — the classic answer is one of "anti-Sovietism". There is something inherent in Judaism and in the Jewish people that makes them a barometer for gauging the temperature of freedom in any country. Again, to quote Lenin, "everytime when any government wants to divert the wrath of the masses it normally turns them against the Jews."

I won't exaggerate by saying that the government of the Soviet Union intentionally wishes to use the Jews as scapegoats. Nevertheless is it impossible to impress upon the Soviet rulers that, when a Jew reads about cultural genocide practiced against his brethren, he has the same sentiment which would overwhelm a Russian were he to learn about a ban against reading Tolstoi or Gorky in the original?

A high Soviet official to whom I spoke this week wondered why I am not convinced of the equality of Jews in Russia. I am not convinced because I do not believe that man liveth on bread alone. Not only am I unconvinced but Yevgeney Yevtushenko, the great Soviet poet is not convinced either. Proof? Read his Babi Yar!

USSR Ottawa Embassy Publishes Anti Israel Propaganda In Official Bulletin

Ottawa, (Special to The Canadian Jewish News).—An anti-Israeli article, published by the Soviet News Bulletin, dated October 31st, 1962, (No. 175) created some sensation among leaders of Canada's Jewish community and among non-Jewish friends of Israel as well. The article, ascribed to a certain G. Stainhamer, allegedly a Soviet citizen who returned from Israel home, to Russia, is full with prejudice, inaccuracies and outright lies about life in Israel.

Examples:

- "Though Israel has its own constitution, it isn't for everyone. Only the rich can be elected to organs of power."
- "Everywhere child labor, which is paid but a fraction of the adult wage, is extensively employed."
- (Israeli children) "grow up meek and humble."

Another nonsense is a statement that "the work is particularly hard at the fruit plantations whose owners live in the U.S."

A characteristic quote from this lengthy article is: "I remember life in Israel as a nightmare."

The Canadian Jewish News asked Mr. Ivan Miranov, press attaché of the Soviet embassy here why the Soviet Union, in a bulletin published for Canadians and purportedly printed for disseminating information about the Soviet Union, should engage in anti-Israeli propaganda here. We asked, is this the purpose of a Soviet news bulletin in Canada?

Mr. Miranov's answer was that the Soviet Union publishes what it considers to be in its interests and the "facts" as it sees them. Mr. Miranov also added that noone should question the right of the Soviet government to disseminate news according to its evaluation of importance. He then added that the Soviet embassy never protested against the "anti-Soviet" articles published in The Canadian Jewish News.

Toronto Jewry Honoured At Philadelphia Rally

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (CJN) — The United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto received recognition for 25 years "of humanitarian service to the community, to the nation, and to mankind everywhere fulfilling the noblest aspirations of our religious faith and our democratic ideals", on the occasion of the 31st General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds held here last week. This scroll was received by Samuel J. Sable, President of the United Jewish Welfare Fund.

D. Lou Harris, Chairman for Capital Joint Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress and Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, was elected Vice-President of the Council.

A Certificate of Award was presented to the Welfare Fund for the excellence of a Single Campaign Publicity Effort created for the United Jewish Appeal campaign during 1962, in cities of 40,000 population or over. The Award was received for the "Portfolio of Giving" describing the services supported by the United Jewish Appeal. Jack D. Pearlstein, Q.C. accepted the scroll for the community.

Dr. Ralph Halbert and Abbey Lipson received special recognition at the General Assembly along with winners from other communities of Leadership Development Awards. A record number of winners of Leadership Awards - attending the General Assembly highlighted the striking growth of leadership training programs throughout the United States and Canada.

"METHODS OF FUND-RAISING"

D. Lou Harris, as Chairman of the meeting on Campaign Planning, directed the discussion of the problem of why some communities raise higher amounts, while others are less effective.

The CJFWF Campaign Committee, of which John D. Fienberg of Toronto is chairman, made public a list of recommendations based on experiences of the most successful communities. The recommendations emphasized the areas in campaigns which were found most productive.

A key area listed was leadership giving and working, termed indispensable for successful fund-raising. Leaders should set the top example with their own gifts and enhance the gifts by conspicuous participation in campaign work, particularly at the start of the drive.

Big gifts require top priority with individual cultivation throughout the year and with special efforts to involve big givers as campaign leaders and workers. The report found that "the key difference between campaigns is often whether the biggest givers worked in the drive".

Central Fund To Support Boys Town Famous Institution In Jerusalem

The latest list of beneficiaries of the Toronto Central Fund for Traditional Institutions, issued in conjunction with its forthcoming annual meeting, lists, for the first time, the famous Boys Town of Jerusalem.

High on a hill-top overlooking central Jersualem, the hills of Judea and the new western suburbs — 530 yards from Mount Herzl — stands one of Israel's most significant educational intitutions.

Boys Town Jerusalem, which this year celebrates its tenth anniversary, was conceived and organized to provide academic and vocational training and a measure of spiritual guidance to boys who were being brought to Israel through emigration, and at the same time to take some of the burden from Israel's struggling educational system. It is privately sponsored and is independent of affiliation with any political party. Its budget is raised through public sources.

What began as an extremely small operation with 18 students has grown into a major school that gives free education and auxiliary support to more than 350 boys, who have come to Israel from 25 countries. Nearly half of these youngsters are orphans.

Plans for expansion of the school call for facilities to handle 1,000 students, half of whom would be boarded on the school site. Ground has been broken for what will be the largest graphic arts centre in the Middle East. Facilities costing $200,000 will be provided for the training of 100 teenage youngsters each year in printing and photo-offset trades.

Another group of boys has been trained in woodworking and carpentry and recently presented a hand-made desk to the Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.

During a second inspection trip to North Africa and Tunisia, he worked with the Jewish Underground in Tunisia and supported the immigration of Jewish refugees from Africa to Canada by the Welfare Council.

"Socialising" The Jewish Press

Professor Jacob R. Marcus' prediction that in the year 2000 all American-Jewish weeklies will be owned by the philanthropic organisations is coming true. Following in the footsteps of the Newark, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Federations of Jewish Philanthropies, the Federation of St. Louis, Missouri (Jewish population 60,000) recently voted to launch an Anglo-Jewish paper for free distribution among it supporters.

In middle-sized American Jewish communities ("middle-sized" means up to 100,000 persons) the Jewish Federations are in touch with all Jewish families identifying themselves as such. Federation-owned Jewish papers, therefore, are assured community wide circulation from the start. This does not imply, however, that the recipients of this bounty read the papers. Usually they are discarded unopened, in keeping with H. L. Mencken's shrewd observation that nobody reads a periodical for which he does not pay.

Like other Jewish Federations that "socialised" their local papers, the St. Louis Federation has opponents. In Missouri, the anti-Federation forces are led by Gabriel Cohen, proprietor of the St. Louis edition of the "National Jewish Post and Opinion." Mr. Cohen emphatically stated that his St. Louis paper is not for sale and he also served notice that he is not afraid of fair competition. "Let the board members of the St. Louis Federation start a private corporation, and let it enter the field against us," he urged in an editorial. "In other words, let them risk their own funds, instead of those supplied by the community at large."

Another Federation with publishing aspirations is that of Cleveland, Ohio (Jewish population, 85,000). Its plan "to buy out" the two Cleveland Anglo-Jewish weeklies has not materialised, however, owing to the objections of leading Cleveland rabbis to a "kept Jewish press."

Mr. Cohen's charge that "the present intention of the St. Louis Federation is nothing less than confiscation" was pressed, some years ago, by the late Henry Hurwitz against Jewish magazines published by communally supported organisations. He argued that they strangled his 'Menorah Journal', which, on a shoe-string budget, could not compete with "Commentary" and "Midstream."

Commentary's sponsor, the American Jewish Committee, recently launched a Hebrew magazine in Israel ("Amot"). United States Hebraists argue that instead of carrying coals to Newcastle the Committee should assist the two struggling Hebrew periodicals in America, "Hadoar", the only Hebrew weekly in the Diaspora, and "Bitzaron" the bi-monthly which has a specially difficult time making ends meet. Israel has a surfeit of magazines, they say.

The question is being raised whether a charity-supported organisation may go into publishing and compete with established private enterprise. The consensus among rabbis seems to be that Federations and other organisations should take heed of the Biblical and Talmudic laws interdicting "hasagat gevool" (unfair competition.)

Mainly for Rabbis

For an "inside view" of Jewish life in the typical American Jewish community there is no better source than the "intra-rabbinic" monthly 'To Our Colleagues', now in its third year of publication. Printed as a public service by Gertz Bros., printers of many Congregational Bulletins and publications, the magazine has a board of editors with equal representation for Conservatism, Orthodoxy and Reform.

In a recent issue, Rabbi Kurt Klappholtz (Orthodox) argued that American Jews are "Jews without prayer" because "we rabbis have failed to teach our congregants how to pray... I know a number of colleagues who consider it not in keeping with their dignity to join the congregation in daily morning and evening prayers at the synagogue."

In the same issue, Rabbi Saul I. Teplitz (Conservative) quotes from Rabbi Roland Gittelsohn's (Reform) description of a typical holiday service at his Temple Israel in Boston, Mass: "The weather was pleasant. It was during school vacation. There were 60 adults present (on the first day of Passover). This comes to just a speck more than 1½ per cent of our adult membership."

Rabbi Samuel M. Silver (Reform) in his column in "To Our Colleagues", reports that "the box score" of Rabbi A. David Arzt's Conservative congregation in Portsmouth, Va. was somewhat better. It stood at 6 per cent of the membership on a typical Sabbath morning in March.

EXCLUSIVE FROM ROME

ISRAEL & THE VATICAN

Rome (JCNS). — An indication that if Israel were to approach the Vatican for the establishment of formal diplomatic relations there would be no rebuff, was given this week by Monsignor Igino Cardinale, the Vatican's Chief of Protocol.

Asked by the JCNS correspondent what obstacles to such relations existed, Monsignor Cardinale replied: "The Church never takes the first move in seeking to establish diplomatic relations, but if a request were made by a given country and if absolute guarantees of religious freedom were supplied, the Holy See would have no difficulty in accepting the opening of negotiations with that country.

To a question seeking to discover whether the Vatican would be prepared to mediate between Israel and the Arab States, Monsignor Cardinale said that if there were a request for mediation from both sides, "the Holy See would reserve to itself the right to act as mediator." But it would not take the initiative of its own accord.

Calendar reform and the adoption of a fixed date for the celebration of Easter were discussed by the Ecumenical Council this week. The trend seems to be toward formulating general proposals without taking any drastic decisions. Protestant circles in Rome saw little urgency in the achievement of calendar reform.

The Council is now discussing the "sources of revelation" in Church liturgy, an item which involves possible new interpretations of Scriptural texts and which provides an opportunity for discussing Jewish representations about antisemitic references in the Catholic liturgy.

Bishop George Hakim, of Acre, has invited the Council participants to join him in a nine-day pilgrimage through Israel and Jordan, to start on December 9.

TILTING BALANCE

ISRAEL, YEMEN AND M. E. PEACE

Egyptian military intervention in the Yemen originally solicited by the rebels, has now turned into a full-scale invasion. Egyptian land and air forces, estimated at some 10,000, outnumber several times over the rebel units which they are ostensibly supporting; the actual fighting is no longer between Yemeni and Yemeni but between Royalists and Egyptians. Having gained a foothold in the Arabian peninsula, Nasser is endeavouring to extend it by every means and has come near to waging an undeclared war against the Saudis into which Jordan has been inelutably drawn.

Nasser has taken the opportunity to renew his attempts to overthrow King Hussein and hopes to see the whole Arabian peninsula, as far as the fertile crescent fall into his hands. Were this to take place, the resulting change in the balance of power in the Arab world would directly affect Israel which would in effect find itself almost completely encircled by Nasser. The Israelis have therefore the right and duty to take any steps which may be necessary to defend their national survival. The statements to this effect by Israel's Foreign Minister Golda Meir and Mr. Shimon Peres, Israel's Deputy Minister of Defence, go no further than might be expected under the circumstances from any Government which takes its country's security seriously.

VOICE OF TRADITION

SECULARISM AND JUDAISM

Ever since Toronto's Rabbi Walter S. Wurburger became the editor of the semi-annual Tradition, this magazine slowly is emerging as the intellectual voice of Jewish Orthodoxy, making an impact upon public opinion on this continent. In a lengthy article, the last issue of Time comments upon Tradition which ,for the first time among all American-Jewish magazines, has dared challenge the position of those who are against prayer in public schools "in the name of the Jewish people'. Tradition picks up the now-famous ,two-month-old editorial of the Jesuit weekly, America, which "warned our Jewish friends" against their support of the Supreme Court decision.

Tradition states candidly and unequivocally the traditional Jewish position. In an essay signed by Dr. Michael Wyschogrod, professor of philosophy at Hunter College, Tradition declares that, not prayer in public schools, but secularist legislation is the threat to Judaism. Wyschogrod sees "theological merit" from the Halakhic point of view in nondenominational worship in public schools. He also urges religious Jews to reconsider the attitudes against federal aid to religious schools.

Whatever one's position towards religion and prayer in schools, Dr. Wurzburger's Tradition should be commended for acquainting the public with the Orthodox point of view in this matter.

REFORM IN CANADA

EVOLUTION OF A RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT

The Canadian Reform Jews will hold their first assembly this weekend in Montreal. This convention of the Canadian branch of the Union of Amerian Hebrew Congregations undoubtedly will bring into focus the recent evolution towards accepting more traditional values within the Reform fold.

The Reform movement — at first in Germany and then in the United States — was an expression of assimilationist tendencies within Jewry. It strove to eliminate from the synagogue Hebrew and the prayers towards Zion.

When Herzl convened the first Zionist Congress in Basle, the German Reform rabbis met in Munich to combat Zionism. In fact, Herzl had been unable to hold the Congress in Germany (as originally planned) because of the opposition by the German liberal rabbis.

However, Jewish history and the eternal Guardian of Israel who never slumbers inspired the very soul of the original Reform movement. Some of the most prominent Zionist leaders in America and many of the most militant proponents of the renaissance of the Hebrew language came from the Reform wing in Judaism. Not anymore an assimilationist stronghold, Reform has become attuned to the call of modern Jewish thinking and plays an important role in the battles for spiritual and physical redemption of the Jewish people. Only a lunatic fringe of "orthodox" Reform Jews of the Council for Judaism remains loyal to the Protestrabbiner of Herzl's time.

Today ,when a convention of Reform Jews takes place, we follow its deliberations with the feeling that here a group of Jews are trying to travel with all of us the road of Jewish destiny.

GOLDMANN'S APPEAL

THE STATE OF ISRAEL & THE JEWISH AGENCY

The disclosure last week by Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, that the Jewish Agency is to seek financial support from the Israeli Government is bound to give rise to a reassessment of the Agency's proper functions in the nineteen-sixties.

For nearly three decades the Jewish Agency — the executive arm of the World Zionist Organisation — was the "State on the way". When the State arrived some revision of functions was unavoidable. An agreement embodied in the "Status" Law of 1952 served as a valuable transition from the pre-State arrangements to a more permanent relationship between the Jewish State and the Jewish people. The Law entrusted immigration, integration and agricultural settlements to the Agency, thereby symbolising the continued responsibility of the Jewish people for ingathering the exiles and building the State.

This assumed that the W.Z.O. effectively collected the funds, or at least represented the wishes of the donors — an assumption which has become increasingly open to question. In the first place fund-raising, particularly on the North-American continent which provides the bulk of contributions, is largely independent of the Zionist Movement and rests on three main pillars: the community, pro-Israeli sentiment and professional fundraising staffs. Secondly many donors are quite unaware of the multifarious uses, apart from immigration, to which the funds are put. This is not to say that many of these activities are not intrinsically valuable; the point at issue is why they should be carried out by the Agency.

The W.Z.O. has encountered increasing financial difficulties in recent years. The income at its disposal from the Diaspora appeals has failed to rise while the Israeli Government's income from abroad in the form of bonds, reparations etc., has grown. In spending beyond its means the Jewish Agency has sunk ever deeper into debt so that a large proportion of its annual income is earmarked for servicing loans, yet its expenditure has not been reduced. Dr. Goldmann's consequent request for Israeli Government aid is, however, unlikely to be greeted with enthusiasm in Israel since it would mean that money collected from the Israeli taxpayer would be handed over to a body other than their elected representatives and over which they had no control.

It now remains to be seen whether the process which began in 1948 of divesting the World Zionist Organization Jewish Agency of some of its functions should not be carried a stage further. There is a case for example, for transferring its cultural activities to the Israeli Government and private organisations. The Agency, on the other hand, is well fitted to carry out certain technical tasks connected with the selection and handling of immigrants, though eventually even these will doubtless be taken over by the Government.

The adjustments called for may be temporarily painful to some, particularly those whose attitudes become fixed during the Zionist Movement's golden age, but they are a necessary price of progress. The real fulfilment of the W.Z.O. - J.A. of the heroic years is the State of Israel.

ISRAEL'S POSITION

THE QUESTION

By David Ben Gurion

The fateful question is whether we shall succeed in imparting to this generation, during the next twenty years, the spiritual legacy that has brought us this far. The Jews from Europe brought here with them great cultural and pioneering assets. Circumstances deprived the Jews from the Islamic countries of the opportunities that were open to the Jews of Europe; and the whole future of Israel — to my mind, the future of world Jewry as well — depends on whether we succeed in passing on to the generation growing up today the whole spiritual, intellectual and moral legacy with which we have achieved what has been achieved. This will require will, effort and ability. And this new generation will have to be taught more than the old generation, for our knowledge, theoretical as well as practical, expands and branches out all the time.

But knowledge without a sense of pioneering mission, without the qualities required for pioneering, is not enough. And it behoves us to ensure that the new generation will surpass its predecessors in education as well as in moral character, for only then shall we be able to realize the destiny that history has imposed on us, and the uniqueness that is our constant destiny. This is so not just because the Book of Books says it — and we must not make light of what the Book of Books says, for it, more than anything else, returned us to our land — but because the abligation to be unique means that this uniqueness is a sine qua non of our existence, our security and the fulfilment of our tasks of bolstering Jewry abroad and on the international scene.

The first thing that is required of us is to enable the generation now growing up in Israel — every young man and woman, without exception — to continue their education, beyond school, within the next 20 years so as to eliminate the cultural gap that still subsists among us. Salary differences, so long as they are not excessive, are not dangerous; educational differences threaten the people's unity and defeat the gathering of the exiles, for they raise social and economic barriers and prevent integration among the various population groups.

In Israel we, unlike the Jewish communities in every other country, are not a minority. All the work which a people must perform in order to exist devolves on us, and on us alone. We ourselves must do every job required for housing, clothing, food, cleaning, transport, production; and there is no reason why the people performing all those tasks should not have a university education, together with the proper vocational training. Only when the educational gap is eliminated will the social and economic gaps be overcome, and we shall become one people, an independent nation and a light unto Jewry.

It goes without saying that this cannot be accomplished overnight. It will be an achievement if within five or 10 years we are able to give a secondary education to every boy and girl — and when I say secondary education I mean both academic and vocational schooling for everyone. Every boy and girl must be given the maximum academic and vocational training that can be provided in the space of four years, after they have completed eight grades of elementary school. After another 10 or 12 years, every young man and woman will be able to get a university education — again both theoretical and practical. Then we shall no longer have a body of university graduates within the nation, but a nation of university graduates, just as in every civilized country today the entire nation is literate, although this was not so a century ago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CAOUETTE & THE JEWS

by David Orlikow, M.P., (Winnipeg)

Dear Editor:

On October 29th, Mr. Lionel Chevrier, Liberal Member for Montreal Laurier, speaking in Parliament put on the record, quotations from an interview with Mr. Caouette which appeared in 'The Alliancer,' a Polish newspaper published in Toronto, on October 13th last. In this interview, the Noranda correspondent, Mr. W. H. Makuch, reported as follows: "He (Mr. Caouette) opened a drawer of his desk and showed me a sheet of paper. 'Read it Pierre, this is a letter from the former chief of the whole German economy. The letter was signed by Hjalmar Schacht. His address was given as a 'Director of Hamburg Bank.' It was addressed to: 'Real Caouette, Member of Parliament in Ottawa.' The context of the letter was approximately following: 'I am very pleased to read in our press about your courageous statements and laudable opinion about the ideas of Adolf Hitler. I was happy to have served under his leadership in one of the key positions in our economy before the war and owing to that I had an opportunity to become acquainted with his greatness.' "

Later in the interview, Mr. Makuch reports as follows: "Later we began talking about the Nazi Germany. Caouette returned to the person of Schacht and to the economical reforms of the Nazis. How little does he know what was actually going on in Germany, is illustrated by the fact that Caouette declared that Schacht was a Jew and despite his origin he was not liquidated by Hitler. When expressed my doubt about this, he stated that Hitler exterminated only 'useless Jews.' ".

It is, to say the least, ominous and disturbing not only to the Jewish people of Canada but to all decent citizens, regardless of their race, color or religion, that the co-leader of a political party which has 30 members in the Canadian House of Parliament should express such despicable views.

It may be that Mr. Caouette will rise in the House at the next sitting to claim that he was misquoted or that his views were taken out of proper context.

Certainly a very legitimate question, which needs to be asked is how often Mr. Caouette can honestly expect the Canadian people to believe that he has been misquoted.

Winnipeg, Man.

— Keep Smiling —

WHAT HAVE YOU

Before the creation of the Jewish State, a Polish Jew who had attended the World Jewish Congress at Geneva was discussing with a friend the relative merits of Palestine and Switzerland.

"I have heard many of the delegates to the Congress maintain that Switzerland is so much more beautiful than Palestine," argued the Polish Jew, "but I can't agree with them. I visited Palestine and now I am here, and I am comparing the two countries. Take away from Switzerland the lakes, and the mountains, and the beautiful scenery and what have you got?"

DISILLUSION

Rochel Turnowsky, a middle aged woman who had just arrived from Poland, went to the post office in Tel Aviv to dispatch a letter to her home town. The clerk weighed the letter and said:

"Madam, this letter weighs more than an ounce. You will have to paste on another stamp."

"Is that so?" Rochel snapped back. "And if it had weighed less than an ounce would you have refunded me the difference? Is this what you call the Jewish homeland?"

A FAVOR

Ike: You know Max Cohen, don't you? Well, he placed me on my feet again.

Mike: Is that so? Has he suddenly become philanthropic?

Ike: Not exactly. You see, I owed him money and he took my car away, so now I'm forced to walk.

HER EXCELLENCY GOLDA MEIR

at BETH TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE

Because of the heavy demand for tickets to hear Her Excellency, Golda Meir, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Israel, when she visits Toronto on Sunday, December 2nd, the community-wide meeting, sponsored by the State of Israel Bond Organization of Toronto, will take place at the Beth Tzedec Synagogue at 2:00 p.m. sharp. The doors will open at 1:00 p.m. and will close at 1:55 p.m. so that everybody will be seated before Her Excellency enters the Sanctuary. Admission to this meeting is limited to paid-up Israel Bond buyers for 1962. Information can be obtained at the State of Israel Bond Office — 787-1741.

CANADIAN PANORAMA

by Mordecai Hirshenson

STUDENT OF JEWISH LIFE

Margaret Wheeler Ph.D., a Toronto-born anthropologist now living in Connecticut, was recently interviewed by Canadian Press after she addressed a Montreal meeting. In Toronto Mrs. Wheeler is remembered as Margaret ("Peg") Pirie who served on the staff of the YMHA and various Jewish camps in previous years. A Gentile herself, she became quite familiar with Jewish social, communal and cultural characteristics and eventually obtained her doctorate from Yale on the thesis topic of "Upward Mobility Acculturation and Assimilation in the Jewish Community of Toronto."

IN NORTH YORK

An interesting electoral battle is shaping up in North York where for the past two years the School Board has been a scene of conflict, back-biting, and incessant skirmishing. The issues have been labour relations (with maintenance and caretaking stuff), teachers' salaries, school population surges, and the ever-building locations, zoning wars, present religious education problem — to name only a few of the many provocations.

In Ward Seven Bruce Sabsay is challenging Isabel Stewart present Board Chairman. In Ward Four consulting engineer Ed Pearl is contending for the seat now held by Sybil Darnell. Ray Hoag and Saul Cowan are again running in their respective wards. Until now no one has announced himself to oppose Cowan. Ray Hoag is well known as an active trades-unionist.

Sidney Moscoe, named in mid-term mto replace Dorothy Bishop, is facing his first Board election.

POLITICAL NOTES

● In Montreal Harry Blank MPP was returned to the Quebec legislature as part of Jean Lesage's Liberal sweep.

In Toronto's Ward Four (the old "Jewish district" in which Jews are now greatly outnumbered) Jack L. Frankel and Sam Sherman are trying to dislodge David Rotenberg or Ho-ace Brown. The two incumbents, however, are regarded as favorites.

Jack Frankel, Self-styled "millionaire", is remembered for the row he provoked at the City Hall a few years ago when he was so anxious to buy the Municipal Abattoir that a constable had to be called in to restrain him. Sam Sherman, a Queen street hardware merchant sometimes known as Harry Greb, may be seeking to emulate his brother Max Sherman of Brantford who made it as mayor of that city.

● Sidney Midanik's departure from the Board of Education along with that of colleagues Robin Harris, Roy Sharp and O. Signsworth, has been described by the Toronton Star as "the most serious loss to Toronto's public education system in perhaps twenty years".

KOSHER? NO LONGER

A local vorsht company which for many years contained the word kosher as part of its trade name has now decided to "legitimize" the name and has acquired hashgacha (supervision) from a Toronto rabbi.

SIMONSKY STEPS DOWN

In Forest Hill Village Laurie Simonsky — reeve of the village since 1956 — has announced his retirement. Simonsky, now 70, is the son of a founder of the Goel Tzedec synagogue in the 1880's. The contest may be between layer Edwin Pivnick and Map and Direc-s Printer Allan Perly.

MEYER BRENNER

The late Meyer Brenner, who died on horse-back two weeks ago, was the first Jewish child to be born in Owen Sound, Ont. (69 years ago). One of his favourite benefactions was the Jewish Old Folks Home on Cecil st. and its present successor on Bathurst st. He was a life-long tennis enthusiast.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

ONE GENERATION GOETH . . .

Commentators on the Bible often find meaning in the juxtaposition of subjects. There is a good example of this in the teaching which they derive from the fact that the first verses of this week's Sidra, referring to the Death of Sarah, are preceeded by the announcement of the birth of some children to members of Abraham's family. From this they discerned an interesting relationship of subject matter which provides us with a valid lesson for our time.

In the list of those births we read the phrase "Bethuel begat Rebekah", and we ended last week's Sidra with that fact in mind. This week we start with a reference to Sarah's death, and our teachers connected the death of Sarah to the birth of Rebekah with the thought provoking comment that one great figure did not die before another was born to replace her. "Before the Holy One, blessed be He causes the sun of one righteous man to set, He causes the sun of another righteous man to rise". The stage is never left vacant.

It is interesting to see this theme worked out in our history. Before Moses died Joshua had already appeared as a leader; before the death of Eli the priest, Samuel had been trained as a servant of God in the Tabernacle; on the day that the famous Rabbi Akiba was martyred, Judah the Prince was born. Developing the point still further, we might note the rabbinic fable that on the day the Temple was destroyed, the Messiah was born. So just as there is never a generation without its leader, there is never a situation without elements of hope and revival. Before Sarah dies, Rebekah is born.

This fact of history and its rabbinic comment provide us with a few important teachings. First of all, we do well to consider the rule of all living things. Life reproduces itself, then it must pass on, so that life, death and life are a process which belongs to the natural order created by God. In times of bereavement, the Kaddish becomes a paradise to the God of life and a song of faith uttered by the next generation, which must now stand forth to pledge its own loyalty and declare its place in the continuous line of untold generations. Before Sarah dies, Rebekah is born.

Then our text is a homily to be preached against those who pin all their hopes on the leadership of one man or the values of one age. For they are doomed to despair when such a man dies when times change. The figure of Atlas holding up the whole world on his broad back is a pagan myth. In the religious view, no man is indispensable, and when his work has been well done the race is taken up by others who are ready to run. Before Sarah dies, Rebekah is born.

Finally, our text can be a corrective against the prevalent and harmful view that all our great teachers belonged to the past and that in comparison with those intellectual giants of earlier generations our present-day scholars are pigmies. Such an attitude of ancestor worship is highly dangerous. It chokes the well-springs of the fresh flowing waters of Jewish life and thought and threatens the ruin of a rival religion. It is a view which reduces contemporary scholars to the insignificant ranks of the memorisers, forever quoting what others have said centuries ago. There is too much leaning on the past and too little originality; there is too much quoting and not enough independent thinking. Of course, we need the past to teach us its wisdom and to guide us from its experience. But we cannot live on the past alone — Sarah died. We must never forget that meanwhile, Rebekah has been born representing a new generation with its own contribution to make to the development of a strong Jewish life.

TORONTO AWAITS HISTORIC VISIT OF GOLDA MEIR DECEMBER 2

His Excellency
YAACOV HERZOG

LAWRENCE SHANKMAN

JOHN R. DEVOR

MRS. MORRIS ZWEIG

SPOTLIGHT BEAMED ON GALA "DIOR-ISRAEL FASHION SHOW"

This year, as never before, a woman's Israel Bond purchase provides an open invitation to the season's most exciting events. Following the successful precedent set last year when the gala Israel Fashion Show was opened to all paid-up purchasers of Israel Bonds, it has been decided to open this year's "Dior-Israel Fashion Luncheon" to all women purchasers in the 1962 campaign.

This glittering event will take place on Thursday, November 29, in the Crystal Ballroom of the King Edward Hotel. Mrs. Morris Zweig, Women's Division Chairman reports that reservations are pouring into the Bond office in unprecedented numbers, and arrangements are now being made to accommodate several hundred additional guests in an auxiliary room adjoining the ballroom.

Distinguished patronesses of the luncheon will be Madame Raymond Bousquet, wife of the Ambassador of France to Canada, and Mrs. Yaacov Herzog, wife of the Ambassador of Israel to Canada. Guest commentator will be Judith Mazor, the beautiful young "Miss Israel of 1962."

SPONSORS' SHERRY RECEPTION WILL PRECEDE LUNCHEON

"A Sherry Reception" for all Sopnsor and Trustee women in the 1962 campaign will be a special highlight of the glamour-packed day, November 29, Mrs. Nathan Silver, Chairman of Sponsors has announced. This will take place immediately preceding the Dior-Israel Luncheon at 11.30 a.m. in the Reception Room of the King Edward Hotel, and will be the occasion for the presentation of pints to Sponsors and Trustees. Presiding over the investiture will be the patronesses of the luncheon, Madame Bousquet and Mrs. Herzog, assisted by "Miss Israel." The impressive ceremony will be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Newsreels for showing in theatres across Canada.

PRESENTATION TO NEGEV PIONEERS

A new category of women participants in the Israel Bond programme — that of "Negev Pioneers"—will be honored at the luncheon as well. Miniature orange trees, typical of Israel's flora will be presented to all women who have increased their purchases to $250 in the 1962 campaign in support of Israel's dynamic new project of reclaiming the Negev desert. Mrs. Robert Zweig is Chairman of the Negev Pioneer Committee of the Toronto Women's Division.

HADASSAH HELPS "MAKE THE NEGEV GREEN" PROGRAMME

Some weeks ago, Hadassah Bond Chairmen in all Toronto chapters received replicas of the map of Israel indicating the vast southern desert regions, barren and gray after two millenia of neglect. The challenge was to turn the Negev desert green again through the purchase of Israel Bonds, which would provide Israel with funds for irrigation, development of new towns and villages, pipe-lines, agricultural and industrial development, homes and schools for new immigrant families. Hadassah women of Toronto responded to this challenge with constructive energy and profound understanding.

Rallying to the slogan "Every Hadassah Member a Bond Purchaser in her Own Right," a number of chapters have already achieved almost 100 per cent coverage of their membership. All chapters report increases of women's purchases in addition to family purchases.

On Tuesday, December 4th, the original maps of Israel will be displayed by chapter Bond chairmen now showing the dramatic changes which have been achieved by Hadassah participation in the Bond effort. Green trees, placed on the map by each Bond purchaser, symbolize the Negev's return to fertility.

A "Sherry Celebration Party" for Hadassah Bond Chairmen will take place on that day at the home of Mrs. Samuel Norris, co-chairman with Mrs. Gabriel Alter for Toronto Hadassah, when each chapter's record of Bond sales will be announced. Individual Bond chairmen are intensifying their efforts in the weeks remaining to make their chapter the first in Toronto to record 100 per cent coverage.

BLITZ DAY '62 SETS NEW HIGH FOR SISTERHOODS

Toronto Sisterhoods play a vital role in the success of the Toronto Israel Bond Campaign through their Collection Drive of High Holy Day pledges. Blitz Day '62 which took place on November 11 saw a constant stream of devoted Sisterhood members pouring into the Bond office with cash collections from the synagogue campaigns. Even husbands were enlisted in the collection effort, on behalf of their congregations. Additional cards were distributed to enthusiastic teams resulting in the collection of several thousands of dollars in vital cash to be transmitted to Israel in the week following Blitz Day.

Israel's Beloved Foreign Minister at Convocation of Bond Holders

Mr. Diefenbaker has placed his private plane at Mrs. Meir's disposal during her Canadian stay to enable her to include visits to Montreal and Toronto in her hectic schedule.

News of Mrs. Meir's impending visit to Toronto—her first since 1956—has electrified this community, united in its determination to provide a triumphant welcome for this beloved Jewish leader. All segments of community life will join in the tribute to Golda Meir for the venerable place she holds in Jewish history, and for the honour she has brought to Jews everywhere as one of the greatest women of our time.

Leading participants in the program for the December 2nd Convocation to be held in the Main Sanctuary of Beth Tzedec Synagogue will be His Excellency, Yaacov Herzog, Ambassador of Israel to Canada; Lawrence Shankman, Chairman of the 1962 Toronto Israel Bond Campaign who will preside at the meeting; Mrs. Morris Zweig, who will represent the Women's Division; and John R. Tickets of admission to the memorable event are complimentary to all paid-up Israel Bond holders for 1962. Because seating capacity is limited to 2300 persons, those eligible to attend are urged to return their R.S.V.P. cards immediately so that their tickets may be forwarded to them without delay. Allocation of tickets is on the basis of ONE ticket for every paid-up Bond purchaser or TWO tickets for the family which has purchased and paid for $200 or more in Israel Bonds for 1962.

Doors will open at 1 p.m. In deference to Her Excellency Golda Meir, there will be no admittance to the Sanctuary after 2:00 p.m.

HER EXCELLENCY GOLDA MEIR

GOLDA MEIR
Crusader for Peace and Freedom

Minister for Foreign Affairs of the State of Israel, Mrs. Golda (Myerson) Meir, ranks among the most outstanding statesmen and public administrators in the world. She has served the Government of Israel in varied capacities as diplomatic envoy, Minister of Labor, acting Minister for Foreign Affairs and Chairman of the Israel Delegation to the United Nations.

Born Golda Mabovitz in Kiev, the Ukraine, on May 3, 1898, she emigrated with her family to the United States at the age of eight, settling in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. While still in her 'teens, she became active in the Labour Zionist movement and in local Jewish community affairs. She was graduated from the Teacher's Training College in Milwaukee in 1917. Following graduation, she was for several years a teacher in the schools of the National Arbeiter Farband, and a member of a commission of the Joint Distribution Committee for aiding East European Jews after the end of World War I.

In 1921 the Myerson family left the United States to settle in Palestine. For three years Golda engaged in farming as a member of Merhavia, a kibbutz in the Emek (Valley of Jezreel). In 1924 she became treasurer of the Office of Public Works in Tel Aviv, which later developed into Solel Boneh, the construction company of the Histadrut (General Federation of Labor).

The election of Mrs. Meir in 1929 as a delegate of the Ahdut Haavoda party(one of the two labor groups which in 1930 formed the Mapai party) to the World Zionist Congress marked the beginning of her activity in the world Zionist movement. She was a delegate of Mapai at most of the subsequent Congresses and went on numerous missions to Europe and America on behalf of the Jewish Agency and the World Zionist Organization. She was also a member of the Executive of the Vaad Leumi (National Council), the highest organ of Jewish self-government in Palestine during the British Mandatory period.

NEGOTIATED WITH ABDULLAH

During World War II Mrs. Meir was a member of the War Economic Advisory Council of the Mandatory Government in Palestine. In 1940 she was designated head of the Political (Foreign Relations) Department of the Histadrut. Following the detention by the British Mandatory Government in Palestine of most of the members of the Jewish Agency for Palestine on June 29, 1946, she became acting head of the Political Department of the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem, substituting for Moshe Sharett, and held this position until the re-establishmen of Israel on May 14, 1948. It was in this capacity that she testified before the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine, which finally recommended the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine. In early May 1948, in an effort to prevent the outbreak of full-scale war between the neighbouring Arab countries and the nascent Jewish State, she conducted negotiations with the late King Abdullah of Jordan for a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

Mrs. Meir was among the signers of Israel's Declaration of Independence and a member of the Provisional Council of State, the first legislature of Israel. In September 1948, she went to Moscow as Israel's first Minister Plenipotentiary to the Soviet Union. In January 1949 she was elected, during her absence, to the First Knesset (Parliament) on the Mapai list, and joined the Cabinet as Minister of Labor and Social Insurance, a position she held in subsequent governments until her appointment as Minister for Foreign Affairs in June 1956. As Minister of Labor and Social Insurance she played a major role in the great work of integrating hundreds of thousands of new immigrants into the economic structure of the country. She was also responsible for the adoption of the first part of a comprehensive National Insurance Plan, designed to cover the entire population of Israel.

HEADED U.N. GROUP

In March 1953, Mrs. Meir assumed the chairmanship of the Israel Delegation to the U.N. General Assembly. At that time she brought to the attention of the World Organization the anti-semitic character of the infamous Prague trials and the Moscow "doctor plot" accusations. On several occasions she served as Acting Minister for Foreign Affairs during the absence of the Minister, Moshe Sharett. Since the re-establishment of the State she has made a number of visits on behalf of Israel causes to the United States. In June 1956, following the resignation of Mr. Sharett, Mrs. Meir was appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs.

She has a daughter, a member of kibbutz Revivim in the Negev, and a son who is a professional cellist.

CLUB MASADA HOLDS FESTIVE BOND FUNCTION
Mr. and Mrs. Irving Potash were hosts at a festive "Champagne Party" at their home for members of Pioneer Women "Club Masada" and their husbands. Guests were entertained by Hy Sands, popular Yiddish-American comedian, shown at far left, with Mrs. Irving Potash, Mr. Potash, and Mrs. Irving Hennick.

November Busy Month For Pioneer Women

For Toronto Pioneer Women Israel Bonds have long been a focal point of activity in their programme of support for Israel. This year, through a series of special events concentrated throughout the month of November, increasing numbers of individual Pioneer women are being brought into active participation in the Bond effort.

With the announcement of the historic visit of Her Excellency Golda Meir to Toronto on December 2nd, an added impetus has been given to the Pioneer Women Bond Drive in order that a full representation of the Toronto membership be present to honor Mrs. Meir at the "Convocation of Bond Holders for 1962." It is hoped that by the December 2nd deadline, 100 per cent enrollment of Pioneer Women will be accomplished in tribute to Golda Meir's lifetime of devotion to the cause of Israel.

B'NAI B'RITH PROCLAIMS DECEMBER ISRAEL BOND MONTH

An enthusiastic meeting of Toronto B'nai B'rith Lodges and Chapters held on Nov. 15 proclaimed the month of December 1962 as "Israel Bond Month in Toronto".

Inspired by stimulating addresses by Dr. Alexander Lipson, First Vice-President Grand Lodge District No. 1, and Max Shecter, Israel Bond Chairman of the Coordinating Committee, representatives of Lodges and Chapters undertook an intensive campaign to sell Israel Bonds to all their member and to participate in the cash collection drive now being carried on in the community.

During the month of December, Israel Bond speakers will visit all Lodges and Chapters to tell the story of this important phase of the economic development of the young democracy.

The highlight of this year's campaign will be the Cafe Tel Aviv project which will take place on January 20. 1963. Admission to this Cabaret-style evening of top entertainment will be limited to paid-up bond buyers who are members of Lodges and Chapters.

MILLION DOLLAR CASH COLLECTION DRIVE HEADED BY MANNY ROTMAN

Mr. Manny Rotman, chairman of the Cash Collection Committee of the State of Israel Bond Drive in Toronto, was host at a Breakfast Meeting at his home last Sunday morning when representatives of 15 organizations and synagogues undertook an intensive campaign to bring in $1,000,000 in cash before the end of this year.

Mr. Rotman pointed out that a "commitment for the purchase of an Israel Bond is not sufficient to help the young state absorb and integrate the large numbers of immigrants expected in the next few months". "Every effort must be made to translate these commitments into cash as soon as possible," Mr. Rotman urged. The commitment becomes an Israel Bond — and then a tangible part of the economic development of the country — as soon as it is paid for either by cheque for immediate use, or by means of post-dated cheques.

Mr. Harry J. Halperin, Acting City Manager, discussed the forthcoming visit of Her Excellency, Golda Meir, and urged all committee members to contact their prospects before the end of the month so that all Toronto purchasers of Israel Bonds will have an opportunity to pay for their commitment and become eligible to attend the city-wide meeting Sunday afternoon, Dec. 2nd.

ISAAC BASHEVIS SINGER – INTERVIEW WITH A GREAT WRITER

The New York literary world is one of scepticism; no one seems much impressed by anyone else. If there's a popular exception, it is that of Isaac Bashevis Singer, who stands majestically outside the conflict, writing busily away — in Yiddish — each new book gaining more acclaim than the last. "The Slave," his historical novel of seventeenth-century Poland, was the critical rage of New York while I was there recently.

I visited him in his bright and pleasant flat; a green and a blue budgerigar perched in an open cage — his belief in freedom extends even to birds — making an occasional sortie to settle on one's shoulder. Singer himself is a slender, gentle, engaging man, who gives the impression of having come to terms with his art, if not entirely with his present life — the violence of the city horrifies him. Pale skinned, bald, speaking good English with a European accent, he has gone beyond the "petit maitre" stage of taking himself and his work with humourless intensity. There's a lively generosity about him.

He was already thirty years old when, in 1935, he left Warsaw for New York — where he still works on the Jewish daily newspaper, "Forward." "The real reason I came,' he said to me, "is that I'm a brother of A. J. Singer, the novelist, and he left for this country. He was to me not as a brother; I regarded him as my master, my teacher. So the moment he went, I considered there was nothing left, and the situation in 1935 was already very bad. I thought that already every day the Nazis would invade Poland." He booked a passage to the States, was offered a better one if he waited a fortnight and turned it down. "I was so pessimistic I thought that in those two weeks the Nazis would march — while other people were terribly optimistic to the very last."

He "really doesn't consider himself an American writer" — this thought Mr. Kenneth Rexroth, in "Commentary," recently appropriated him as "one of the greatest living American writers." Nor does he feel that he is writing within the classical Yiddish framework. "Some critics say that I don't write in the Yiddish tradition, and I would say in a way it is true. The Yiddish tradition is that of the enlightenment; of the people who suddenly discover there is Europe. They were in a way rationalists; they went away from religion. But for some strange reason, I was too young when I started writing to be affected, so this business of the enlightenment, that we could discover everything with our reason, passed by me.

"I suddenly discovered when I was young this business of rationalism was not enough. No other Yiddish writer writes about devils — or when they do, then only sceptically. I use them both in a symbolic and a realistic way. I would say that it's a mixture of mysticism and realism, because my feeling is there's no difference between supernatural and natural. We call supernatural that which we don't know — for instance, two hundred years ago electricity would be considered supernatural. If I write about a devil, I treat him as though he exists; that's why I'm more a mystical than a symbolic writer. I feel that symbolism should come out of the whole work; I don't approve of those people with whom on the first page there's already a symbol.

"I think the great trouble with modern literature is the lack of religion. The fact that people have stopped believing in God has done a lot of harm, because people who don't believe in God are sceptics, their values change all the time, and this creates a turmoil in writing. Even my own religion isn't the religion of my father, but at least I cling to it enough to know what's right and what's wrong."

He himself is extremely sceptical about the current tendency of American Jews who write to call themselves "Jewish writers."

"Because they write about Jews doesn't make them a Jewish writer. To be a Jewish writer, I would say you have to know Yiddish and Hebrew, because if you don't know these languages, you can't call yourself a Jewish writer. You can call yourself a good writer. You can call yourself a good writer about Jews, like Jacob Wassermann. I might one day write myself about Italians, but I would not call myself an Italian writer.

"It's true that being a Jewish writer you limit yourself, but every artist finds a corner. The fact that these young people want to call themselves Jewish writers is nice — it means they are proud of being Jewish— but from another point of view it isn't true; the fact is that America considers them a part of their literature."

He doesn't believe in a Yiddish revival, in any wide sense. "The only thing I do believe is that Yiddish will never disappear, because many important books were created in Yiddish, and I think the only reason languages disappear is because they have no creative power — nothing good was ever created in them. And then Yiddish is already connected with six hundred years of Jewish history—and you can't ignore history. The past is alive as much as the present. . .

"In a way, I feel that to be a Yiddish writer is to be isolated in a very terrible way from the world of literature. On the other side, it has one good thing: I have a lot of material. I am like a man who has been given a lot of ground, because I can write of life not only in this country, but of any country where they speak Yiddish, and not only about and not only about this generation, but about past generations — whereas in the United States the ground is so covered that they have difficulty looking for a theme. That is why they come back and back to the Civil War!"

THE FIVE DAY WEEK

The five-day week contrary to many authorities is not an American invention. It is true the five-day week came to America during the great Depression when employees gave everybody Saturday morning off and thus cut payrolls.

After the worst of the Depression had passed, people found they got as much, if not more, done and the five-day week has been with us since, with time and a half for those who work Saturday and double time for Sundays and holidays.

The ultra Orthodox Jews who lived in the Middle East worked five days a week since the 11th century. The Moslems, too, had a five-day week, resting on Friday and Saturday. There were many of the early Christians who didn't work on the Jewish Sabbath Saturday nor on the Christian Sabbath, Sunday.

Over the centuries, no doubt, the five-day week has cost money but it gave man time to think and rest.

One of the modern problems the adanced technology has introduced is what to do with the leisure. The Hebrews for centuries put their leisure to excellent uses, not because they had higher ideals or better laws, but because existing conditions forced a philosophic advance in leisure time.

There were no opportunities for entertainment since the Sabbath bans these and the movements of the Hebrews were also circumscribed by the ghetto.

The only thing the Hebrew could do on the Sabbath were study, read and listen to talk. This has shaped their history and their lives.

My friend, Joe Lapid, reporter for Israel's largest afternoon paper, "Maariv," wrote to me about his interview with Judy Garland's daughter, Lisa Minelli. This 16-year-old actress played the role of Anne in the Israeli production of the "Diary of Anne Frank". According to all of the critics she gave a moving performance.

Lapid asked, "How can you, an American girl whose father is an Italian-Catholic and whose mother is a Protestant, understand so accurately and poignantly the life, thoughts, and fate of Anne Frank and present them as beautifully as you did?"

Answered Lisa: "Every young girl has the same problems with parents, with the lack of parental understanding. Every young girl has her first love . . . ."

"And what about the persecution?" asked Lapid.

Judy Garland's little girl made an interesting observation: "The audience here is quite different. At the moment in the play when the Germans come to pick up the Frank family, I looked at the audience and do you know what they seemed like? Like the Germans were coming to pick them up, too."

HUMAN RELATIONS

Unready to Wed

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I am in my late twenties and for seven months have been dating a young man in his early thirties. He tells me how much he cares for me — which is supposedly very much — and how desirable I am.

However, he also says that he cannot become serious because he is not yet on his own financially. Another thing that disturbs me is that he has dated some of my friends and when they "fell" for him he left them for someone else.

Should I keep dating this young man or socialize with people who are more eligible?

ANSWER: Eligibility is most often a matter of emotional availability. People who are not ready to establish a deep and lasting relationship will find all kinds of excuses for not doing so. Sometimes it is money or financial responsibility for parents or siblings. Other times they find a fault or weakness in the person they say they love. They may achieve the same result by falling in love with individuals who they are sure will reject them. In this way they evoke the sympathy of friends and relatives and avoid the judgment that they really don't want to get married.

This type of behaviour is seen in both men and women. Their very unwillingness to relate deeply is the characteristic that forms the basis for the attraction. These self-exiled refugees from deep emotion sometimes sense this in each other and form a relationship based on loneliness rather than on love.

A girl your age who has been around should be aware of the unreliability of males who flit from girl to girl, particularly with girls who are friends and belong to the same crowd. This kind of behavior is appropriate at the age of 13 and 14 when youngsters want just a simple friendship. From these passing friendships they learn a little bit about the boy or girl and, most important, something about themselves and about how to behave in social situations. But for people in their thirties to operate this way in their dating life is really out-of-date.

The reports about this man's previous dating should have warned you about what the eventual outcome would be with you. This young man, from his past history alone, could not make a possible candidate for marriage. In self-protection you may be preparing to remove yourself from the scene before he leaves you.

What this man wants from you, or from any other woman at the present, is not a girl friend but a friend who is a girl. A "going steady" relationship is apparently all that he is ready for. It gives him the feeling of being a male. Flitting from one girl to another represents to him, symbolically, the collection of scalps, which brings him reassuring reminders of his virility and desirability, however spurious they may be.

The contacts you make from now on should be your own, and not the discarded boy friends and left-over relationships of your girl friends. Sometimes a person may depend upon her friends as she used to do upon her parents. This dependency shows a fear of venturing forth to find and establish a life of your own.

When you feel desirable and are emotionally available, men who want to marry will find you attractive and psychologically eligible.

REFORM CONVENTION IN MONTREAL

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations is comprised of 640 Reform congregations in the United States, Canada, Panama, and the Dutch West Indies, with a membership over one million. Headquarters are at the UAHC House of Living Judaism in New York City. There are seven Reform temples in Canada with a membership of approximately four thousand families.

There are three branches of Judaism, Orthodox Conservative, and Reform.

Chairman of the Convention will be Mr. Sidney S. Schipper of Toronto. Co-chairmen of the local Montreal arrangements committee, Messrs Joseph J. Cooper of Temple Emanu-El and Harry Wolfe of Temple Beth Sholom, said in a joint statement that "the convocation marks a new era for Reform Judaism in Canada. We will not only have an opportunity to exchange ideas and work together as a union of congregations, but also to build towards an even higher goal during the next seven years.

"In 1969, the 49th General Assembly of the UAHC will be convened in Montreal. At that time, over four thousand visitors from Reform congregations all over the western hemisphere will gather. All of this will demonstrate the new vitality of our liberal expression of the Jewish faith," he said.

Seven notable Canadian spiritual leaders will participate in the conference events. They are: Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Temple Anshe Sholom, Hamilton, Ontario; Rabbi Louis J. Cashdan, Temple Emanu-El, Toronto, Ontario; Rabbi Jordan Pearlson, Temple Sinai, Toronto, Ontario; Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Holy Blossom Temple, Toronto Ontario; Rabbi H. Leonard Poller, Temple Beth Sholom, Montreal, Quebec; Rabbi Harry J. Stern, Temple Emanu-El, Montreal, Quebec; and Rabbi Sherwin T. Wine, Temple Beth-El, Windsor, Ontario.

PLAUT TO DELIVER SERMON

Other speakers include: Gunther Lawrence, UAHC Director of Public Information; Heinz Warschauer, Director of Education, Holy Blossom Temple, Toronto; Lester Sugarman, Executive Director, Holy Blossom Temple; Ben Steinberg, Director of Music, Holy Blossom Temple; Sidney M. Harris of Toronto; and Dr. Lyon Lapin of Montreal.

On Friday evening, November 23rd, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut will deliver the conference sermon on the theme, 'Isolation, Integration, and Reform" at a Sabbath Eve service at Temple Emanu-El.

Saturday morning at Temple Beth Sholom, Rabbi Bernard Baskin will preach on the theme "The Reform Approach to Tradition." That afternoon, at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, delegates will participate in two seminars on "Parochialism and Community Relations," and "Ritual and Practice in Reform Judaism." Chairman for the first workshop is William Gittes of Montreal.

On Sunday afternoon, three workshops will discuss expansion and new congregations, contacting the unaffiliated, establishment of information centers, publicity and promotion techniques and music in the temple. Chairmen for the workshops are: Messrs Harry Karal, Toronto; Norman Genser, Montreal; and Manuel Zack, Hamilton.

The Sunday luncheon will hear a report from the Council's Director, Joseph L. Kronick of Toronto, on the work of youth in the temple. During the afternoon, the business sessions will be held.

OVER AND OVER AND OVER

By RUTHIE

Say, now many times, in the midst of admonishing or calling after your offspring, have you been taken aback by the thought,

"Here I go — just like Mama used to do."?

Mornings, when they're just barely out of the house on their way to school, you yell,

"Watch your step! Don't unbutton your neck when you turn the corner!"

To which you get back a piercing, "Mameeee!"

That word speaks volumes.

I remember when Mama did that to me. All in two seconds flat, while still within hearing distance, I was told to watch myself, close my neck, wear my gloves, don't dawdle, look out for cars, eat all my lunch (if I got it in school), listen to the teacher so I won't get a detention, and not to forget to tell my younger sister's teacher to let her "leave the room" when she raises her hand — regardless of frequency.

It didn't help one iota when I said in exasperation,

"Ma, don't yell after me. You embarrass me. The other mothers don't do that."

'S hutt gehulfen vie fahr a toiten bonkess (it helped like for a dead man healing cups). I kept being embarrassed and she stood her ground.

"Wait, Ma, you'll see. I won't be like that."

"Oi, ahlavei (I hope), I should live to see it — your children should tell you the same thing. Then you'll know the feel of a mother."

And, you know, she was right. Often have I tried to analyze why we act like that. I've come to the conclusion that our subconscience may have something to do with it. For instance, it may be one way of warding off the evil eye. Sure, I know, we're not superstitious. Still, if we repeat last-minute instructions, maybe Reboinishaloilem (God) will throw in an eye and an ear, and keep our kids from harm.

* * * *

Remember when you complained about too much homework? And when test time came, you felt that killing either yourself or the teacher was easier.

"Can you imagine, two exams in one day, and no time off to study!"

"Mama folded her hands across he stomach and sighed,

"Kinderlakh (children), you don't know when you're well off. 'Siz enk tzoo goot (you have it too good). Wait till you have our responsibilities, you'll wish you were back in school."

That was the joke of the year. I — wish I were back in school? Ha! Ha!

You know something? I wish I were.

ZOC Decisions

HIGHLIGHTS OF ZIONIST ASSEMBLY

The Diamond Jubilee Convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada, held this month at Toronto's Park Plaza Hotel, was the greatest in the history of Canadian Zionism.

The most important decisions were:

- The incorporation of Keren Hatarbut as the cultural and education arm of the Zionist Organization of Canada.
- Transfer of the 'Aliyah' portfolio to the United Zionist Council, thus adopting a platform for encouraging Aliyah.
- Establishment of a $500,000 loan fund, for mortgages for Canadians in Israel. Up to $7,500 at 8% for 15 years on suites or homes valued at not more than $15,000 will be offered to encourage more Canadian families to settle in Israel. The fund will be administered through the General Mortgage Bank of Israel. Announcement of the fund was made jointly by Samuel Bronfman, president of Canada-Israel Development Ltd., and D. Lou Harris, chairman of the ZOC Mortgage Loan Committee.

The proposal originally extended to the Keren Hatarbut (Canadian Association for Hebrew Education and Culture) for some sort of affiliation with the Zionist Organization of Canada, was ratified by the ZOC in closing sessions of its resolutions committee plenary body. The proposed partnership had been the main topic of the one-day National Council meet of the Keren Hatarbut on the eve of the ZOC convention opening.

Spokesmen for the union saw it as a fulfillment of the fullest implications of Zionism, and as a means of guaranteeing the financial backing and community support for widest dissemination of the knowledge of Hebrew.

The highlight of the historic convention was the address of our prime minister, the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker. The importance of Mr. Diefenbaker's appearance was stressed by many Zionist leaders. Excerpts follow:

LAWRENCE FREIMAN:

". . . It is indeed a great honour for me to welcome you on this important evening. I suggest the importance of this evening not only because of the distinguished presence of the Prime Minister but also as it symbolizes the rapport, understanding and deep sympathy which our guest of honour has evidenced for the Canadian Jewish community. It is not surprizing that this great audience has come to pay its respects to you, Sir, as its esteemd guest of honour.

". . . As Canadians and as Jews we are prideful of the strong and determined voice the Prime Minister has raised against discrimination wherever it might exist. We are mindful of the fact that the Canadian Bill of Rights which came into effect in 1960 echoes his beliefs for freedom and for human dignity. His voice was one of the first of the heads of government to be raised against discrimination on religious grounds in the U.S.S.R. In view of the tremendous concern Jews throughout the world feel for the plight of their co-religionists in the U.S.S.R., it was indeed a source of comfort for us to know that you, Sir, and if I may quote your own words "share the sense of alarm and outrage that people of Jewish faith have been singled out for harsh punishment as an example to others". Further, you said and I quote: "No opportunity should be lost to draw public attention to discrimination wherever it appears. The Soviet leaders must not be allowed to conclude that the world outside is indifferent. Silence in the face of injustice will be taken as acquiesence".

RABBI S. M. ZAMBROWSKY:

"There could be no loftier climax to this great Zionist Convention, to which such a large representative group from all across Canada has gathered, than the honour bestowed upon us by the presence of our Prime Minister and his gracious lady. We are honoured and overjoyed by his presence, not only because he is the Prime Minister of Canada, but because he has become a symbol of certain great ideals, such as his passion for justice, his championship of the common man and the downtrodden. By the uniqueness of his character and deeds, he has written his name securely forever on the scroll of fame.

". . . How fortunate for us that we have at the helm of our government a man imbued with great spiritual and religious inspiration, a man who possesses the skill and valour of a soldier, and the faith of a deeply religious humanitarian." It is not without significance that our Prime Minister is the one who brought about the Canadian Bill of Human Rights. His dedication to the study of the Bible gave him that inspiration. It is from the same source of the sacred fountain of the spirit that makes him champion the cause of our reborn State of Israel.

...In the words of the wisest of all men, King Solomon: "Happy art thou, O Land, when the ruler is a free man." Happy indeed are we that our ruler is such a lover of freedom."

RABBI DAVID MONSON:

". . . Mr. Prime Minister:

". . . Your love of Zion, rooted in your Biblical-religious background is well known to all of us.

". . . Two years ago, when your beloved mother, sated with years, entered her eternal rest, there was planted by the Jewish National Fund the "Mary Florence Diefenbaker Memorial Grove". Thus for evermore, the name of your dear mother is enshrined on the hills of Judaea.

The Jewish people have accorded an exalted place to its friends; they have bestowed a special title upon those who have shown them, through the long and bitter centuries of persecution, consideration and understanding. The title is "Hassiday umot haolam" — "the righteous of the nations".

". . . You, too, Mr. Prime Minister, are one of the "hassiday umot haolam", one of "the "righteous of the nations". Your name is inscribed in the annals of Jewish history."

OUTLOOK FOR THE ZIONIST MOVEMENT:

JOSEPH N. FRANK, new president of the Z.O.C.:

". . . I regard the Presidency of the Z.O.C. as one of the prime honors that can be conferred by Canadian Jewry, and it is not surprising that I should think in these terms because I regard the Zionist Movement as the greatest force for Jewish survival and accomplishment in world Jewry, and you will understand my convictions because of my lifelong commitment.

". . . I should like to observe for all who cherish sentiment, tradition, some part of Zionist mystique, that I am the first President of Young Judaea to ever become the President of the Zionist Organization of Canada, and that all our Officers are themselves former Young Judaeans. The circle comes full cycle at this Jubilee Convention, and I signify this event only to emphasize that I hope the new administration will fix as a first priority of its business, full attention to the problems of Youth through Young Judaea, so that there may be ensured for the future leadership of the Z.O.C., Presidents from its ranks."

DAWN

a novel by ELIE WIESEL the author of NIGHT

CHAPTER VIII

"A cold in the head?" I repeated.

"Yes," said Ilana, quite seriously. "The English have no description of me; they know only my voice. One day they hauled in a whole group of women, myself among them. At the police station a sound engineer compared each one of our voices to that of the mysterious announcer of the Voice of Freedom. Thanks to the fact that I had a heavy cold I was quickly eliminated and four other women were detained for further questioning."

Once more I was tempted to laugh, but the others were glum and silent. A cold, I thought to myself. And in this case it turned out to have more pracical use than either faith or courage. Next we all looked at Gad, who was almost crushing his teacup between his fingers.

"I owe my life to three Englishmen," he said. With his head almost on his right shoulder and his eyes fixed on the cup, he seemed to be addressing the rapidly cooling tea. "It was very early in the game," he went on. "For reasons that no longer matter the Old Man had ordered three hostages taken. They were all sergeants, and I was assigned to kill one of them, any one; the choice was up to me. I was young then, about the age of Elisha, and suffered great mental agony from having this unwanted role thrust upon me. I was willing to play the executioner, but not the judge. Unfortunately, during the night I lost contact with the Old Man and could not explain my reluctance. The sentence had to be carried out by dawn, and how was I to choose the victim? Finally I had an idea. I went down to the cellar and told the three sergeants that the choice was up to them. If you all three of you will be shot. They decided to draw lots, and when dawn came, I put a bullet in the unlucky fellow's neck."

Involuntarily I looked at Gad's hands and face, the familiar hands and face of my friend, who had put a bullet in the neck of a fellow human being and now talked coldly, almost indifferently, about it. Was the sergeant's face gazing up at him from his cup of cool tea?

"What if the sergeants had refused to settle it among themselves?" I asked. "What then?"

Gad squeezed the cup harder than ever, almost as if he were trying to break it.

"I think I'd have killed myself instead," he said in a flat voice. And after a moment of heavy silence he added: "I tell you I was young and very weak."

All eyes turned toward me, in expectation of my story. I gulped down a mouthful of bitter tea and wiped the prespiration off my forehead.

"I owe my life to a laugh," I said. " It was during one winter at Buchenwald. We were clothed in rags and hundreds of people died of cold every day. In the morning we had to leave our barracks and wait outside in the snow for as long as two hours until they had been cleaned. One day I felt so sick that I was sure the exposure would kill me, and so I stayed behind, in hiding. Quite naturally I was discovered and the cleaning squad dragged me before one of the many assistant barracks leaders. Without stopping to question me he caught hold of my throat and said dispassionately: 'I'm going to choke you.' His powerful hands closed on my throat and in my enfeebled condition I did not even try to put up a fight. Very well, I said to myself; it's all over. I felt the blood gather in my head and my head swell to several times its normal size, so that I must have looked like a cariature, a miserable clown. I was sure that from one minute to the next it would burst into a thousand shreds like a child's toy balloon.

Lily I. Sherizen, Q.C., well known attorney and Jewish communal worker, one of the pioneers of our Zionist movement, will run for the Board of Education for Ward 4. An official announcement to this effect was issued this week.

ISRAEL'S CRUISE LINER TO SAIL ON KOSHER CARIBBEAN CRUISE

Those vacationers who have had to forego the delights of a Caribbean Cruise because of the lack of kosher dining facilities will now be able to sail on the S.S. JERUSALEM which is preparing for a "strictly kosher" 15-day Caribbean cruise from New York on February 21st, according to Mel Samuel, manager-owner of Overseas Travel Ltd.

"This cruise is especially tailored to meet the needs of the observant Jewish family", said Mr. Samuel. "Not only will kashruth be strictly observed and maintained throughout the entire ship, but regular synagogue services will be held during the voyage".

Mr. Samuel stated that the idea of a cruise designed for those who observe the dietary laws has been enthusiastically greeted by clients making enquiries at his Eglinton Avenue West office.

The gleaming-white JERUSALEM, flagship of the Zim-Israel Line, will call at Martinique in the French West Indies in time for the famous Mardi Gras Carnival; Curacao in the Dutch West Indies where cruise members can visit the oldest Jewish congregation in the Western hemisphere; the Virgin Islands which abound with tax-free, duty-free shopping bargains; Trinidad, home of the Calypso. Visits are also made to the colorful and popular cruise ports of Haiti, Jamaica, and Venezuela with ample time ashore in all ports for sightseeing. "By special arrangements with the Steamship Company, we are able to accept Canadian money at par for this exciting cruise-holiday", said Samuel.

THEATER HI-LIGHTS

This Thursday and Friday evenings, November 22nd and 23rd, Hal Zeiger brings to Massey Hall "Borscht Capades." For the past fourteen years, "Borscht Capades" has played to full houses in every key city in Canada and the States. It is essentially a laugh show, with hilarity as its keynote. Jokes are fast and furious, interspersed with nostalgic Jewish songs.

This edition of "Borscht Capades" stars the famous capitol recording artist, Mickey Katz, comedians Rickie Layne and "Velvel," Larry Best, Marty Drake, Larry Alpert, and Jo-Ann Florio, Italian beauty who chants cantorial selections.

With only two more performances left of The Lesson, The Chairs, Happy Days, along with Mrs. Warren's Profession, the Red Barn at Central Library Theater will round out its first half of its repertory of plays.

This Friday evening, November 23rd, 8:30 p.m., Hart House Theatre will present its second of a monthly series of plays, through Saturday, December 1st. The play is Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar named Desire," directed by Robert Gill.

DANIEL BARENBOIM
Famous Israeli Pianist, acknowledged "Master of the Keyboard", will appear this Saturday evening, November 24th, at Toronto's Massey Hall.

Entertainment World

By D. COHN

● Alan King sports a cane these days. He hurt his knee while onstage.

● Georgia Brown, star of "Oliver!", which is coming soon to Toronto's O'Keefe Centre before hitting Broadway, signed a two-year contract with producer David Merrick.

● Paul Draper, the dancer who resumes his partnership with Larry Adler, weighs exactly the same as he did 25 years ago. He keeps in trim by dancing daily and by riding a bicycle. In fact, he rode to his daughter's graduation by bike. It was in Williamstown, Mass., 175 miles from New York. He made it in nine hours each way.

● A woman wouldn't make a very good astronaut, claims Ivern Boyett. After two orbits she'd come back to see if she'd turned off the oven.

● Since Irving Berlin came out of retirement and wrote "Mr. President", he is raring to go. He is trying to get Ethel Merman for his next show in 1965 and isn't giving up because she says she's tired and only wants to play Las Vegas. "I'm not tired!" quips Irving.

THE BORSCHT CAPADES IN TORONTO: The inimitable Rickie Layne and "Velvel", who appear this Thursday and Friday evenings, November 22nd and 23rd, at Massey Hall, in Borscht Capades.

DATELINE: HAMILTON

AS I SEE IT

By PAUL HANOVER

Want to know what Irving Leon and Lena (Mrs. Abe) Stringer have in common? They both were winners in the Miss Alpine Contest. Irving had his lunch paid for, Mrs. Stringer, her hair styled. And something else. Irving is celebrating a new look for his store, while Lena and Abe, are celebrating a new grandson, their first, from elder son, Ted. . . Yet another boy child for the community, again a first-born; this time for Dr. and Mrs. Jack Shekter. Jack made the news later in the week when his doctor's black bag was stolen from his car. I got the story from my "Number Two" boy. How did he find out? Take a bow, Jack. One of the grade fours used it for current events. This is another example of how Drs. Ben Casey and Kildare have colored our lives!

A so-sorry-to-hear note now to Ginny Bloom and her brother, Dave Latner, about whose new venture we mentioned last week. They were burglerized the very weekend of their opening, proof of a basic tenet. In business, you must expect two grand openings: The one you run through the front door and the one the genuvim (thieves) run through the back. . .Wedding bells rang for the Lou Latners as their son, Hershey, exchanged vows with Eleanor Granek, a St. Catharines miss with a Hamilton background. Her grandfather was the same Granek whom we knew as the Shochet and to whom my parents always lovingly referred as "Der Roite." Eleanor's dad, of course, is the same Granek whose unstinting efforts helps keep the Zionist Organization the important force it is in Canada.

More social notes: It'll be a June wedding for Larry Smurlick, son of Saul and Anita, and Joan Minden, daughter of Sol and Bertha Minden. What's that? No. I dont know if he bought his diamond there. . .The Meally Ellenzweigs also are preparing their wedding invitation lists. Daughter Judith met her man at University of Toronto. He's from Port Arthur, Nathan Stitt, by name. What's that? No, I don't know from where they plan ordering the chaleh!

A recent visitor from Windsor was Morley Kessler, here with his wife and father-in-law for the Sam Lax Bar Mitzvah. "You havent changed much," said Morley to me. I didn't want to tell him about the color job on my hair, just in case he had one too. Got quite a kick out of the chat we had (with his father-in-law, Jack Karpel, a long-time insurance man in Hamilton who devoted many of his few spare, precious, hours to community work. He's just as active public-service-wise in Windsor, this time, with the Senior Citizens of that district. . .One of the funniest true-life stories we heard in some time came our way from Saul Marks. A candidate it is for "Life's Most Embarassing Moments." It involved his grade-ten-boy in his Ancaster High geometry class. I'd relate it, but it just might be Saul's only laugh-getting story. So why ruin a good conversation piece?

THEATRE IN TORONTO

By BARBARA I. PEARL

ENCORE AT O'KEEFE

Like champagne, some things become better with age. Lerner and Loewe's 'My Fair Lady", presented a second time at the O'Keefe Center, is one of those things. In fact, the old girl is faring stronger than ever.

No need to go into detail. By now everybody is familiar with the fairytale story of the urchin of London's Soho district who is literally taken out of the mud and transplanted into upper class society.

Eliza Doolittle is taught the basic rudiments of good English by Prof. Henry Higgins, with the help of Col. Pickering. When she has assumed the accouterments of a fine lady, she is left to her own devices. Fate, however, plays a hand. Love steps in, upsets the applecart for awhile, and then emerges victorious.

Who, sometime or other, hasn't hummed, "Why Can't the English", "Wouldn't It Be Loverly", "With a Little Bit of Luck", "Just You Wait", "The Rain in Spain", "I Could Have Danced All Night," "On the Street Where You Live"? Masterpieces!

A new cast is like a refresher course. You think you've seen it all, but there always is something else to behold

Gaylea Byrne is a most vivacious, tenacious Eliza. She brings spirit into a part that could have died of boredom. Ronald Drake is quite a blade. Too bad Rex Harrison played the first Henry Higgins, for Drake runs a close second. However, the latter makes up for any reminder of his predecessor by Danny Kaye-like sparks of humor.

Hugh Dempster portrays a slightly weak Col. Pickering. Hats off, though, to Charles Victor who gives us an understanding, hilarious Alfred P. Doolittle.

Though the costumes of Cecil Beaton are the same as six years ago, they still can vie for first place in fashion.

JACK WALL'S FIFTH PEG

The Tarriers, a New York-based folk quartet opened a two week engagement on Tuesday, at The Fifth Peg.

Nominally, this is one of the older folk groups appearing today. However, only Bob Carey, the lead guitarist dates back to the original group.

Back in 1956, with Eric Darling on banjo, the Tarriers' rendition of the "Banana Boat Song" swept the country. Darling left to join the Weavers and Clarence Cooper, one time soloist with the Hampton Institute Choir added his deep, mellow voice and guitar in 1958. Later, Eric Weissberg, a Julliard-trained master of the strings, added his banjo brilliance to the group's sound.

Most recently, the trio broadened to a quartet with the addition of Marshall Brickman. Last week, the group finished a week-long network radio show with Arthur Godfrey.

Sharing the bill with The Tarriers is Lynn Gold, fresh from a concert appearance at New York's Town Hall.

TORONTO UJWF TO OBSERVE ITS SILVER ANNIVERSARY DEC. 4

The United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto will celebrate its 25th Silver Anniversary Annual Meeting at a dinner on Tuesday, December 4th at the Beth Tzedec Synagogue according to an announcement made by Samuel J. Sable, President. The Welfare Fund was organized in 1937 and has become the focal point and coordinating body for health and welfare services in the Jewish community.

Miss Florence Hutner, Executive Vice-President of the Welfare Fund, in a keynote address will report on the major developments in the community over the past 25 years. The progress of the community will also be related in the form of a dramatic presentation featuring Murray Davis as narrator.

The other items on the program of the meeting will be the presentation of the Annual Ben Sadowski Award for outstanding leadership and the Young Leadership Development Award for the young man who has given outstanding, meritorious service to the community in 1962. This award has been established by the United Jewish Welfare Fund in recognition of the need to stimulate and encourage participation of young men in communal affairs.

The Nominations Committee chaired by Meyer W. Gasner, will submit to the Annual Meeting the nominees for Officers and Board of Directors for 1962-63.

A special resolution will be presented by the Board of Directors of the United Jewish Welfare Fund to the Annual Meeting for confirmation changing the Letters Patent to provide:

'That upon the dissolution of the Corporation and after payment of all debts and liabilities, the remaining property of the Corporation shall be distributed or disposed of to charitable organizations, or to organizations, the objects of which are beneficial to the community.'

Mr. Sable extended a cordial invitation to members of the Jewish community to participate in the 25th Annual Meeting and to celebrate this important milestone in the growth and development of the community.

BULLETINS

CANCEL BEIRUT VISIT

Paris, (JCNS) The French Fencing Federation decided not to accept an invitation by Lebanon to attend the Beirut Fencing championship after the Lebanese Consulate here, on instructions from Beirut, refused to deliver a visa to Yves Dreyfus, a member of the French fencing team, who is Jewish.

Dreyfus is champion of France and Europe and would have lead the three-man delegation.

The French High Commissioner for Sports, M. Maurice Herzog (who is Jewish) approved the Federation's decision.

SIR ISAAC WOLFSON

London, (JCNS) The Executive Committee of the United Synagogue unanimously recommended that Sir Isaac Wolfson should succeed the Hon Ewen E. S. Montagu as President of the organisation. Mr. Montagu announced in September that he would resign on December 3.

The election will take place on December 3.

EL AL MILLIONTH PASSENGER

Jerusalem, (JNCS) Rabbi Avraham Eisenbach, a 38-year-old teacher of Torah at Hessed Yeshiva, in the Geula quarter of Jerusalem, found that he was a VIP when he boarded an El Al aircraft bound for New York. As the millionth passenger carried by the Israeli Airline he was presented with a beautifully bound leather and silver Bible.

ISRAEL AND POLAND RAISE LEGATIONS STATUS

Jerusalem, (JCNS) Israel and Poland announced they were raising their respective Legations in Warsaw and Tel Aviv to the status of Embassies.

JORDAN TELLS TORONTONIANS OF OVERSEAS EMERGENCY

Charles H. Jordan, Director-General of Overseas Operations for the Joint Distribution Committee, reporting to leaders of the United Jewish Welfare Fund and the United Jewish Appeal in Toronto, this week summarized the greater demands for services by the JDC. The special combined meeting was called by Samuel J. Sable president of the Welfare Fund.

Emphasizing the urgency of the problem in France, where the influx of Algerian Jewish refugees has strained the Jewish community facilities, Mr. Jordan noted that the Jewish population in France had "jumped from around 300,000 to more than 500,000 in the past six years."

"This makes the French Jewish community the fourth largest in the world," he said. "However, the nearly $3,000,000, which the JDC will spend this year to help the French Jewish community cope with the emergency needs and develop long-range plans for integrating the newcomers, is only a tenth of JDC's total budget."

In addition to helping care for the influx of refugees in France, Mr. Jordan pointed to JDC's continuing responsibility for those who remained behind. "In Algeria, for example, the 10,000 or less who remain, include a high percentage of aged, crippled, blind and ill persons, who now, that the community welfare agencies have almost completely collapsed, are dependent on JDC for life itself," he said.

Malben, JDS's welfare program for aged, ill and handicapped immigrants in Israel, continues to require nearly a third of JDC's annual budget, he said. JDC has spent more than $125,000,000 in the 13 years it has been conducting the Malben program, he reported. In addition, JDC provides financial aid to over 100 yeshivoth in Israel, with a combined enrollment of over 11,500, he added.

In Europe, JDC is providing some form of assistance to more Jews than at any other time in the past ten years, Mr. Jordan stated. In addition to aiding some 52,000 in France, JDC maintains welfare programs in Western Europe, Yugoslavia, Greece and Poland. In Poland, JDC aid goes to nearly half of the estimated 25,000 remaining Jews, he said.

"Finally,' Mr. Jordan told Toronto Jewish community leaders, "enormous problems still face us all in Morocco, Tunisia and Iran, where residual Jewish population is totally dependent on us. Further, because of lack of funds, we have not yet been able to care for the Jewish aged in Morocco. Since continued neglect creates ever-increasing problems, this problem has become a must".

JDC is a major beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto.

JNF ACTING DIRECTOR FOR CANADA

Mr. Jacob Gottlieb, Executive Director of the Jewish National Fund of Canada for the past nine years, has been granted a year's leave of absence during which time he will work on behalf of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem in some of the European countries, with headquarters in Zurich, Switzerland.

During his absence Mr. Harris D. Gulko, who since 1953 has been Executive Director of the Central Region of the Jewish National Fund, will be the Acting National Executive Director of the Jewish National Fund of Canada.
